Similar to bacteria, there are so many other kinds of germs that are present all over your house. The most common places one can expect germs to infest are bathrooms, kitchen, the laundry room, different doorknobs and switches and the area that your pet lives in. Some of these germs are harmless while some others can make your family sick. Using antiseptics is the easiest way to stay safe from a germ attack. An antiseptic is a product that slows down and eventually stops the growth of microorganisms. Antiseptics are safe enough to be used on the skin. One of the top-selling antiseptic products in the world is Dettol. This brand is a part of the Reckitt Benckiser family and the parent group was established in the early 1800s. After a series of mergers and acquisitions, the RB brand was formed in 1999. Dettol remains the best selling brand of this group. The different products you can buy from this brand are hand washes, body washes, multipurpose cleaners, liquid detergents, cleaning antiseptics, tissues, and antibacterial and antifungal products. Families around the world trust Dettol antiseptic liquid and use it to clean their floors, their laundry and the furniture. If you find your family often exposed to infections and diseases, you should definitely invest in a bottle of this antiseptic.
