The Application Instructions document below can be used as a checklist to ensure all necessary documents are gathered and completed prior to submission of your application materials. The regional Field Office that oversees the county in which the agency will be located will assist with reviewing and processing new applications. Before a new application is submitted, a prospective provider should reach out to the County MH/ID Administrator of the county in which the agency will be located, to discuss the program they are seeking licensure for and to obtain a county letter of support/acknowledgement. If a prospective provider plans to enroll in Medicaid for payment, the provider should also reach out to the applicable Behavioral Health Managed Care Organization to obtain information on becoming an in network provider. This is separate from obtaining a license through The Department and licensure by the Department does not guarantee a provider will be accepted into any payers network. Helpful regulations and resources can be found below as well as on the Regulation and Standards page of this site. Prospective providers should review the regulations below as well as the specific program regulations/standards listed above for their specific program types. Any questions related to regulations, standards, or licensure can be directed to the applicable regional field office. New Provider Regulationsand Resources Family-based mental health services (FBMHS) are voluntary mental health services for children and teenagers who have a serious emotional or behavioral disorder, and their families. FBMHS help children who may need psychiatric hospital services or other out-of-home services. FBMHS can provide crisis intervention at any time of the day or night to decrease the possibility of your child needing to leave home due to a crisis. FBMHS may be appropriate if your child: Has serious emotional and/or behavioral difficulties Is at risk of needing treatment in a psychiatric hospital, a residential treatment facility (RTF), or another type of out-of-home setting Needs an intense mental health service. At a minimum, outpatient therapy has been tried and has not been enough to help your childHow to get FBMHS At least one adult family member or caregiver must be willing to participate in your child's treatment.A psychiatrist or psychologist must recommend the services for your child.How can the FBMHS team help your child and family if you have a crisis?At the beginning of treatment, your FBMHS team will work with you and your family to make a crisis plan. If the crisis plan does not work as planned, you should call your FBMHS provider directly for help. Your FBMHS team is available to you when you have a crisis, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. The goal of the FBMHS team is to help you keep your family strong and together by: Improving communication and stress management skills Teaching you and your family problem-solving skills Improving coping skills Teaching parenting and behavior management skills Advocating for your child in the school and community Helping your family obtain other needed servicesThings to know about FBMHS: FBMHS are only for families that want the service. FBMHS include individual and family therapy, case management, crisis intervention, and family support as needed. FBMHS are provided by a team of 2 mental health workers. The family and the treatment team establish treatment goals. Families must be seen at least once a week by the treatment team or more often if needed. FBMHS are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, even on holidays, for scheduled appointments and crisis intervention.Call us if you have questions or need to find help for your child or teenager. 1-833-DOS-BPOA .
