Your dream is to open a children's clothing store and you are seriously serious to make it happen. Fortunately, until people continue to have children, you will need clothes for children. There are many things to consider before starting a company and it is important to take your time and face every aspect as you go. With motivation and some hard work, you can start a clothing store for children where parents will enjoy shopping. Start with a business plan. Even if you are not trying to finance the shopping, a business plan will organize your ideas, helps you direct a certain market and will allow you to estimate start-up costs and financial projections. US small business administration provides a free model to help you get started. (See Resources) Find a location for your new children's clothing store. Unless you are building a new building, you will have to choose between the fronts of the empty store in a shopping center. Pay attention to young parents' shopping habits. Ask yourself if you buy the center or drive in a larger shopping center. Choose your position wisely. You want to put your store where you will be accessible to the largest number of parents with children. Visit with your banker if you need funding to start your children's clothing store. Bring your business plan and your financial documentation, such as tax records, debt and current resources. Your banker will take you all into consideration when they decide whether to finance your project. Contact your status to get your business license and request an identification number of the employer (EIN) from the IRS to monitor taxes from the time. You can request an online EIN number. (See Resources) Call your county offices to determine if you need to get additional licenses. In some states, everything you need is the state license, but in others, it is necessary to have state licenses, county and local. Buy clothing for your children's shop by contacting wholesale distributors. By now, you know what kind of clothing line you would like to call the producers and set up meetings with their representatives. Usually, representatives will come to you, since they make a commission when you bring their line. Paint, carpet and design your store to satisfy your child's theme and open your doors. Make sure you contact your local newspaper and invite the mayor for a tape cut. Advice takes into account the retail market in which you live. By putting a high-level store in an area where only low-income families live may not be profitable how to put in a boutique shopping mall with other boutique shops.
