His reputation rests on 66 investigative novels and 14 short-circuit writer and playwright. circuit collections that have sold over two billion copies, a quantity exceeded only by the Bible and works by William Shakespeare. [1] His works contain several characters Regular with whom the public has become familiar, including Hercule Poirot, Miss Marple, Tommy and Tuppence Beresford, Parker Pyne and Harley Quin. [2] [1] Christie wrote more stories of Poirot of those of others, even if he thought That the character is "rather unbearable". [2] Following the publication of the New York Times. [3] [4] He married Archibald Christie in December from 1914 but the couple was divorced in 1928. [2] After being sent to the Western front in the First World War, you worked with the detachment of voluntary help and in the chemical dispensary, giving them a basic knowledge of backgrounds of medicines and poisons. [2] Christie's writing career started during the war after she was challenged by her sister to write an investigative story; You produced the mysterious deal to styles, which was refused by two publishers before it was published in 1920. [2] [5] following the limited success of the novel, she continued to write and constantly built a fan base. She continued to write over a hundred works, including additional novels, stories, games, poems and two autobiographies. You also wrote six romantic novels under the pseudomonym Mary Westmacott. [6] One of the Christie games, the mice trap, opened in the West End Theater in 1952 and, starting from December 2015 a public vote identified and then there were no one "originally published in 1939 under the name of ten small Negri" as the new favorite Christie novel of the public; The book was the writer's favorite, and what she found it harder to write. [8] In September 1930 Christie married the archaeologist Max Malkan. The couple frequently traveled on archaeological expeditions and used experiences as a base for some plots, including murder on Orient Express (1934), murder in Mesopotamia (1936) and death on the Nile (1937). You also wrote the autobiographical travel book come, tell me how live (1946), who described their lives in Syria; The biographer of her, Janet Morgan, reports that "archaeologists celebrated ... [Christie's] Contribution to nearby eastern exploration". [2] Christie died in January 1976, the reputation of him as a novelist of high crime.
